Frank Cohn was born in 1925, in Breslau, Germany (now Poland). Suffering violent antisemitism, the family emigrated to the US in October 1938, shortly before Kristallnacht. In 1943, Frank enlisted in the US Army. After 3 months of being investigated as an "enemy alien", he was cleared for citizenship and fought in the Battle of the Bulge. Later, he joined an Intelligence unit named T-Force to investigate and interrogate Nazi prisoners for later prosecution. He continued his distinguished US Army Service for 35 years, achieving the rank of colonel and being appointed Chief of Staff of the Military District of Washington.
